PLANS TO GIVE MEXICO BIG ARMY

Compulsory Service Is Expected to Give the Republic an Army of Million and Half.

A million and a half men will wear the red pined blue uniform of the Mexican army in 1923, if the plans of the war department for enforced military service are carried out by the Mexican republic. This plan has been submitted to the president of the republic and final action is expected soon as the president has indicated his willingness to adopt such a measure for the protection of the nation.

The law, which was first presented to Porfirio Diaz in 1908, later passed by congress and put up to Madero, who never signed it, requires that all Mexicans under the age of 25 and over 18 years be forced to serve three years in the active army organization; another three years in the first reserve, and then into the second reserve for another three years, making the total time required to be in the army nine years. Married men and students will be exempted from service in the army. It is expected that this will give Mexico an army ready to take the field numbering 80,000, the remainder being in the first and second reserve forces. The plan was recommended that the plans for obligatory service be rushed so that the conscription law would be in effect before the country while he is president.

REBELS REPORTED NEAR THE COLONIES

All is quiet in Mexican Settlement, But There is Fear of Trouble—Caudillo Colonists Fleeing.

Those coming from the Mexican colonies report that outwardly everything is quiet, but there is an undercurrent which predicts that the Constitutionalists are hovering near and only waiting till their increasing numbers shall become strong enough for them to take control.

Orrin Romney and Wilford Farnsworth are returning to their homes and taking their families. Their children are not well and for the present they will leave the rebels rather than the hot summer with their little children. Edward Evers and Miles Romney are buying land on the Gila and will move their families there. The house will be ready in a few days.

Bert Whetten has gone into Mexico to try and get some of his horses and tools to work land in the Blue Water country. Those having gone to Blue Water expect to hold on to their possessions in Mexico, but they like their present possessions very much and will not part with them, even though they are able to return to their better homes. The Brown boys are taking up places at Blue Water also.

George E. Evers is here. He is trying to get out a carload of cattle for the use of the Tucson colonists. Mr. Moffett expects to take his family to Mexico, but the death of his wife has changed his plans. He will return, but the children will remain here for the present. Laura Jones returned from Utah because of the illness of her mother, but she did not arrive until after her mother's death.

Sam Brown buried his infant son near Canutillo this week. Those who have taken farms on the river in the neighborhood of Canutillo feel very much encouraged. Their crops are looking fine.
